

School-Based Health Initiative

Strengthening Partnerships To Improve Student Health Outcomes

On October 29-30, Bigfork school's nurse Jennifer Knopik and school health liaison Alyssa Grekoff attended the Montana Healthcare Foundation 2025 Symposium and Innovative Summit, at Montana State University in Bozeman. This conference brings together grantees and partners from around Montana to discuss school-based health initiatives and learn from each other.

Over the two days, participants attended seminars and presentations on how team-based care and local collaborations are improving health in their communities.

Jennifer and Alyssa were invited to share during a seminar titled Innovative Practices in School-Based Health about Bigfork School's work on improving student attendance and what processes we have in place to address chronic absenteeism.

Jennifer Knopik, Kelsey Gummer (Montana Healthcare Foundation) and Alyssa Grekoff, at Montana Healthcare Foundation 2025 Symposium and Innovative Summit

